Music to our ears ...

Dear Parents

This week has flown by!

A busy week in school this week. The children have been working hard. I've seen some wonderful writing in Acorns class and the Oaks have been exploring alternative versions of fairy tales with excellent enquiry and questioning skills.

Today the full time children wrote their own Revolting Rhymes inspired by Roald Dahl. We have shared some of these on our Facebook page. In the afternoon they worked well as a team to create a timed ball run out of pipes, planks and pots. They also made bird feeders for Forest Friday area.

Advanced notice- I would like to invite you to a parents reading session after school 17th February. This will start at 2.30pm. We have a sports club after school for anyone who needs child care and we aim to finish at 3.45pm.

We also will be having a Huxley's Got Talent Show on the 10th March straight after school. If your child is interested in taking part please let us know. If we have a lot of interest we may need to do 'heats' prior to this so please register your child's interest along with the 'talent' they'll be showing us e.g. magician, singing, dancing, gymnastics, showing their art etc and we can organise it from there.

Thank you!

A community thank you this week. The children were gifted with a lovely book about bees written by Mary Thorp just before Christmas. You should have all received one. Mary and Rupert came and had a walk around the school when they dropped the books off and were very complimentary of our school. Thank you Mary for your kind donation, we look forward to reading it and using it this spring to help us study bees further.

Many thanks

Mrs Gourley
